Ministers Moment March 2020 with Rev. Daniel Bryant

Prayer breakfasts don't often make the news. Typically they are fairly benign events when religious leaders get together with various political leaders for some inspiration, good thoughts about the need for compassion and generosity, and of course, prayer for the well-being of the nation. The National Prayer Breakfast began under the Eisenhower administration with support from Billy Graham and has received the support of every President since. Speakers have included our own Senator Mark Hatfield, Mother Teresa, Ben Carson (chosen twice), prime ministers of other nations and my personal favorite, Bono (the lead singer of the British rock band U2). Typically the President of the U.S. speaks after the guest speaker.

Held on the first Thursday in February with over 3000 in attendance, this year's breakfast featured Arthur C. Brooks, a genuine compassionate conservative who has written two New York Times best sellers on the importance of free enterprise and the conservative vision for a prosperous America as the best means to achieve true happiness for the most people. Brooks writes for the Washington Post and has collaborated with the Dalai Lama. In a dialogue with President Obama he stated that "poverty is the thing I care about most." NBC news called him the "poverty guru" of the Republican party for his efforts to increase the focus on solutions to poverty. In his address at this year's breakfast, he spoke about the principle of loving our enemies, urging attendees to spread their faith by modeling unity and reconciliation in a divisive time. His spirit of goodwill was short lived.

Following Brook's comments, President Trump admitted "I don't know if I agree with Arthur," and thereupon began an attack on the faith of House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and the Senator Mitt Romney, a Mormon, who cast the lone Republican vote against the President in the impeachment trial the day before. Calling his political opponents, "dishonest and corrupt people," Trump triumphantly celebrated his exoneration by the Senate and assured attendees that God was on his side. Many applauded, others shook their heads. "This event has usually been to bring Washington together," stated Princeton University historian Kevin Kruse, "and that instead he used it to further denigrate others' faith and cast doubt on their public expressions of faith is stunning." The Rev. Jim Wallis was even less kind, writing in his blog for Sojourners magazine that Trump's comments reveal that "the moral health of our public life, the very soul of our democracy, and the integrity of faith" are under attack.

Fortunately, the theme of loving one's enemies prevailed in the end. Congressman John Lewis provided the benediction by pre-recorded video due to his progressing cancer. Telling of how he was nearly beaten to death by police decades before on the "Bloody Sunday" at the Edmund Pettus Bridge in Selma, Congressman Lewis quoted Martin Luther King, Jr. who said, "I have decided to stick with love, for hate is too heavy a burden to bear." And then Lewis, who did not hear what the President had just said of his political opponents, went on to say, "But I never hated the people who beat me because I chose the way of peace, the way of love, and the way of nonviolence. For the God Almighty helped me."

And so it is, that the truth of God still is heard, even at this year's National Prayer Breakfast. May God help us all.

HEART OF EUGENE TRANSITION TEAM

Greetings,

Your Transition Committee has been hard at work. We created a proposed interim staffing plan, and submitted a detailed congregational profile to our Regional Minister Cathy Myers Wirt to help her find interim candidates with a suitable fit with FCC.

We'll meet with Cathy March 2 to discuss specific candidates. We'll then interview candidates, and once the Committee and the candidate reach an agreement, we'll submit our decision to the FCC Board for their decision on calling.

We are still within our timeline and hope all the parts come together. Please continue praying for the success of this process.

Blessings,

The Transition Team

Dan's Retirement Celebration
Sunday April 5 at 5:30 pm at Valley River

Everyone in our church community, the Eugene/Springfield Community, family, friends and colleagues from around the Region are invited.

Aspire Eugene is a 1 night - 3 hour event just for women, featuring nationally known speakers, comedians, and worship leaders. This event is sponsored by Abingdon Press and Abingdon Women, national publishing companies that have a rich tradition in religious publishing crossing denominational boundaries. Abingdon Women offers enriching and relevant studies for women specifically.

Aspire was born out of the desire and need for women to enjoy a night out, with fellowship and spiritual growth. This is not a Disciples of Christ specific event, nor a specific program of our church, but a special rental that may appeal to you and your friends.

Tickets are on sale in our church office if you would like to purchase one or more. Or in groups of 10 with a special discount.

View from a Volunteer

This is a new, and hopefully ongoing feature of our newsletter, and all FCC volunteers are invited to participate. Please send your stories, impressions and thoughts about volunteering here to Eliza Roaring Springs by the 20th of each month (elizarsprings@gmail.com), and she will piece together an article. It's a chance to share our experiences! All ideas are welcome, however brief or lengthy.

So, to start us off...

I've volunteered at FCC for the last year in many different ways, and honestly, I've enjoyed them all. From cracking hundreds of eggs with Saturday morning breakfast prep, to answering the phone at the front desk, to finding a coat for someone's little girl in the Helping Hands room, every experience has enriched my life. Supposedly I'm "helping others," but really, it's helping me. The tasks vary a lot, but all have included laughter and hugs and creating new bonds of friendship—and not only with FCC members! In Good Samaritan I get to spend precious time with a huge variety of folks who come in needing help, and they become my friends too. What a joy it is to simply be with them and listen and care—offer a sandwich, an idea, a bus pass, a hug...what a joy to feel needed.

For information on how to get involved as a FCC volunteer, please connect with Yvette in the front office to fill out a volunteer form.
